

Take a look at what can happen (after you attend a Greenside Up workshop!)

I received this email following a full day workshop held in Kilkenny last year. I especially liked the highlighted sentence.

Hi Dee,

I have finally gotten around to sending some photos of the first year's gardening following the course in Kilkenny - in fact the following weekend the raised bed construction began!

We sowed some early potatoes and some main crops which were successful. Like you we had great success with the courgettes, but after the first frost the plants are gone. Likewise the onions went well, garlic and outside tomatoes (grown from seed). As can be seen from one of the photos a small greenhouse is the next project in the plans.

I think I will be going down the road of organic pest control for the slugs as the feasted like kings on my cabbages this year. My wife Marian, also used the comfrey and nettle feed with really seemed to work well on the veg. That area of the garden is now the busiest area, from what was an eyesore.

Thanks for the help and the newsletters are a great help for tips and pointers.
